INTRODUCTION

Welcome to our 2015 Politics catalogue

We've been working with some of the world's most valued philosophers, political scientists and thinkers to bring you a host of new books that add to our understanding of the of key debates in politics, past and present.

Political scientists including Charles Taylor, Will Kymlicka and Monica Mookherjee come together in Multiculturalism Rethought, edited by Varun Uberoi and Tariq Modood, to reflect on the extraordinary legacy of Bhabha's work and take it in ever new directions (page 14).

Giorgio Agamben himself kicks off our new Encounters in Law and Philosophy series with STASIS: Civil War as a Political Paradigm (page 13).

Our increasingly globalised world demands a new approach to ethical issues – turn to page 32 to browse our Ethics, Human Rights and Justice section. You'll find new books on human trafficking (page 32), the environment and climate change (pages 34 and 35), the practices of global ethics (page 36) and whether violence is justified in the pursuit of non-violent goals (page 37).

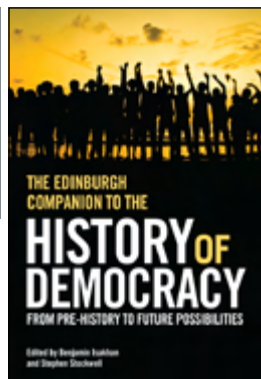

We've also been listening to your feedback about which books you'd like to see in paperback. Don't miss the new, pocket-friendly editions of The Edinburgh Companion to the History of Democracy, edited by Benjamin Isakhan and Stephen Stockwell (page 4), or The Post-Political and Its Discontents, edited by Japhy Wilson and Erik Swyngedouw (page 24), and many more.

So take some time and have a browse – I'm sure you'll find something to excite, challenge or inspire you. And if you think your work would sit well on our politics list, we're always on the lookout for new books to publish so get in touch. Send me an email – Jenny.Daly@eup.ed.ac.uk – to discuss your project.

The Edinburgh Companion to the History of Democracy

From Pre-history to Future Possibilities

Edited by Benjamin Isakhan, Centre for Citizenship and Globalisation, Deakin University, and Stephen Stockwell, Griffith University

Re-examines the history of democracy, broadening the traditional view with previously unexplored examples

'This celebration of democracy's big tent explores a wide range of historical societies that might be seen as manifesting democratic tendencies or proto-democratic institutions, probes the successes and failures of recent democratic movements and interrogates the future of citizen government.'

Josiah Ober, Stanford University

'A learned and powerful corrective to the conventional wisdom that democracy has specifically Western roots. The editors and contributors authoritatively demonstrate, rather, that the will of the people, citizen engagement and the rule of law have cut across very different cultural and historical trajectories. In so doing they reveal the complexity of democratic ideas and counter the facile and self-satisfied assumptions that have long characterised their study.'

James Piscatori, Durham University

This substantial reference work critically examines the history of democracy, from ancient history to possible directions it may take in the future. Over the course of 44 chapters, it explores the full breadth of the origins of democracy and expands the canon of democratic history by exploring new – and sometimes surprising – examples from around the world.

- Split into nine parts, each part contains an introduction to the period followed by three to seven case studies of specific governments or political movements
- The first book to study lesser known histories of democracy, as well as looking again at familiar examples
- Includes historical accounts from leading scholars that document the development of democratic practices in their area or epoch of interest

Post-Foundational Theories of Democracy

Reclaiming Freedom, Equality, Solidarity

Oliver Marchart, Kunstakademie Düsseldorf

Combines the heated debates between critics and defenders of democracy to create a new theory

Are we living in post-democratic times? The upsurge of revolutions and revolts in both the West and the Arab world begs to differ. So is there a political alternative to existing democracy?

Approaching historical developments from the perspective of post-foundational democratic thought, Oliver Marchart creates a new model that reconciles both of these viewpoints. He sheds fresh theoretical light on questions of post-democracy, radical democracy and today's unfolding democratic revolutions.

- Develops the first synthetic model of post-foundational democratic thought
- Critically discusses the landscape of democratic theory, from Nancy, Rancière, Agamben and Arendt to Mouffe, Balibar, Žižek, Lefort and Connolly

Republican Democracy

Liberty, Law and Politics

Edited by Andreas Niederberger, University of Duisburg-Essen, and Philipp Schink, Goethe University Frankfurt

Explores the historical and theoretical relationships between democracy and republicanism, and their consequences

This book expands on the foundational principle of republicanism, and puts forward new insights into connections between liberty, law and democratic politics. In this way, it gives you a radically new conceptualisation of the meaning and structure of democratic institutions and procedures.

- Treats historical and theoretical perspectives together, giving you an alternative to the political and legal theory of contemporary liberalism

The Rise of Democracy

Revolution, War and Transformations in International Politics since 1776

Christopher Hobson, Waseda University

Explores democracy's remarkable rise from obscurity to centre stage in contemporary international relations

Christopher Hobson looks at the historical contrast between the strongly negative perceptions of democracy in the 18th century and the very high degree of acceptance and legitimacy in contemporary international politics. Building on this, Hobson looks at the role of democracy in international relations: in the past, its present role and the likely future challenges.

- Tracks the emergence and development of popular sovereignty, democratic government, democratic peace theory and the international system
- Employs a conceptual history approach, giving a new perspective on the contemporary challenges and future uncertainties facing democracy

The Trouble with Democracy

Political Modernity in the 21st Century

Edited by Gerard Rosich and Peter Wagner, both University of Barcelona

Critically analyses the current state of democracy in examples from throughout the world, including the global South

Is democracy here to stay? The international commitment to democracy is more widely shared than ever, yet popular will is having a decreasing impact on political decisions. Existing democracies suffer from a combination of technocratic governance and populist reactions; exported democracy creates failed states and increases international tensions. Global political communication has foundered with addressing urgent problems such as climate change, social justice and economic-financial crises.

This book places our political condition in its historical context, reconsiders key issues of political thought and compares current democracies across different world regions.

Governing Taiwan and Tibet

Democratic Approaches

Baogang He, Nanyang Technological University

Problematises China's current policies towards Tibet and Taiwan and offers a fresh democratic approach

China is facing a national identity crisis. This is compounded by Tibet and Taiwan, where significant proportions of both populations do not identify with the Chinese nation state. Could democracy realistically address the problems in China's national identity? Chinese nationalists argue it cannot; Chinese liberals remain unduly silenced.

Baogang He opens up a dialogue where Chinese liberals can offer viable alternatives, defending key democratic principles and governance. He upholds the search for a political space in which democratic governance in China can feasibly be developed.

Deliberative Democracy

Issues and Cases

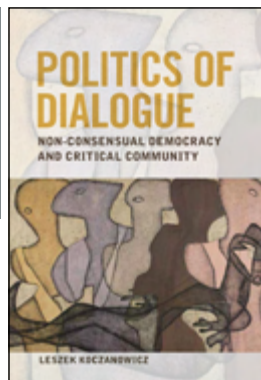

Edited by Stephen Elstub, University of the West of Scotland, and Peter McLaverty, Robert Gordon University

Addresses the problems with deliberative democracy – and potential solutions – in the context of empirical evidence

In this book, leading democratic theorists address the key issues that surround the theory and practice of deliberative democracy. They outline the problems it faces in the context of empirical evidence and put forward innovative solutions. Each chapter takes a key issue as its focus, such as conflict, inequality, pluralism, participation and the public sphere.

Politics of Dialogue

Non-consensual Democracy and Critical Community

Leszek Koczanowicz, Warsaw School of Humanities and Social Sciences

Uses the concept of dialogue in Bakhtin and others to productively move democratic theory forward

'Drawing on the resources of the American pragmatist tradition, Bakhtin's dialogic notion of interaction and his own experiences in post-Communist Eastern Europe, the distinguished Polish political theorist Leszek Koczanowicz enters the current conversation about the nature of democracy with a new and arresting argument. Contesting wan proceduralism and the telos of deliberative consensus, he offers instead a model of a critical community that emerges out of the practices of everyday life and fosters the understanding of difference rather than the demand for full agreement.'

Democracy Against Itself

Sustaining an Unsustainable Idea

Mark Chou, Australian Catholic University

Why do some democracies self-destruct?

'An enormously important book on politics and democracy. What makes it both interesting and brilliant reading is not Chou's abandonment of democracy but his scorching analysis of how democracy is misrepresented – the perversions and swindles made in its name against its real promise.'

Henry A. Giroux, McMaster University and Ryerson University

Using four case studies – democratic Athens, the Weimar Republic, contemporary American democracy and China's fledgling efforts to democratise – Mark Chou examines why democracy is prone to self-destruction.

The Political Philosophy of Niccolò Machiavelli

Filippo Del Lucchese, Brunel University, London

A new, critical introduction to Machiavelli's thought for students of politics and philosophy

'Filippo Del Lucchese provides an original interpretation of Machiavelli's thought as well as the debates surrounding his work over four centuries. Written with clarity and elegance, this book is likely to become a classic.'

Étienne Balibar, University Paris Nanterre

All students of European political thought encounter Niccolò Machiavelli's work. Nevertheless, his writing continues to puzzle scholars and readers who are uncertain how to deal with the seeming paradoxes they encounter.

The Political Philosophy of Niccolò Machiavelli is a clear account of Machiavelli's thought, major theories and central ideas. It critically engages with his work in a new way, one not based on the problematic Cambridge school approach. Geared towards the specific requirements of students who need to reach a sound understanding of Machiavelli's ideas, it is the ideal companion to the study of this influential and challenging philosopher.

- Introduces Machiavelli's life and the historical and theoretical context within which he developed his ideas
- Detailed examinations of Machiavelli's most commonly encountered texts, including The Prince, The Discourses, The Florentine Histories and The Art of War
- Critically analyses Machiavelli's most important concepts and shows how they continue to reverberate within political philosophy
- Pays particular attention to Machiavelli's language and central themes such as Virtue, Fortune, Conflict, History and Religion

STASIS

Civil War as a Political Paradigm

Giorgio Agamben, European Graduate School

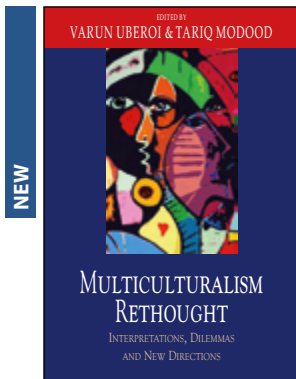

Agamben's genealogy of power in terms of political, philosophical and legal thought

Giorgio Agamben investigates the ongoing warfare that European state power has been waging against its most malignant enemy: civil war itself.

The survival of the state is seen to depend on its ability to preserve the political community from factional enmity. Agamben investigates first the classical Athenian theme of 'stasis' – the city's struggle against internal revolt. He then turns to a new reading of Hobbes' Leviathan and its approach to the peril of the early modern English Commonwealth's exposure to civil strife, division and revolution.

At the heart of this book is the issue of state powers in their continuous decline – an issue that is key to the renewal of political, philosophical and legal thought.

- An interdisciplinary exploration of the relations that form historically and theoretically between law and philosophy
- A unique simultaneous investigation into the laws of philosophy and the philosophies of law
- Focuses on the creativity of the legal and philosophical imagination in the face of the present social situation
- Explores legal and philosophical concepts and modalities in relation to the formation and intersection of institutional traditions, histories and ideas
- The first volume in the new Encounters in Law and Philosophy series

Multiculturalism Rethought

Interpretations, Dilemmas and New Directions

Edited by Varun Uberoi, Brunel University, and Tariq Modood, University of Bristol

Explores contemporary multicultural dilemmas through the lens of Bhikhu Parekh's political thought

Bhikhu Parekh's work is widely regarded as amongst the most original and significant contributions to the political theory of multiculturalism. In this book, a selection of the leading theorists of multiculturalism revisit aspects of Parekh's work to underline both its continuing importance and the vitality of multiculturalist theory. Some contributors locate Parekh in the tradition of British pluralism or as inspired by Gandhi; some apply his theory to a range of controversial contemporary multicultural dilemmas; and others extend it in new directions.

Multiculturalism and Interculturalism

Debating the Dividing Lines

Edited by Nasar Meer, University of Strathclyde, Tariq Modood, University of Bristol, and Ricard Zapata-Barrero, Universitat Pompeu Fabra

An exploration of theoretical approaches to multiculturalism and interculturalism in Europe and North America

How should different states reconcile ethnic, cultural and religious diversity to forge unity? In recent years, interculturalism has emerged as a possibly distinct alternative to prevailing approaches of multiculturalism. But how is multiculturalism different from interculturalism, and is one approach better than the other? This collection brings together leading proponents from both sides to address this question.

Multicultural Immunisation

Liberalism and Esposito

Alexej Ulbricht, SOAS, University of London

A critical intervention in liberal theories of multiculturalism

Multiculturalism has recently been declared dead, while at the same time the value of diversity is still emphasised – how can we explain this? Alexej Ulbricht completely reassesses liberal theories of multiculturalism and argues that the 'backlash' is actually the strengthening of tendencies already present in liberal multiculturalism. Using the theories of Roberto Esposito to argue that liberal multiculturalism is best understood as a series of immunitary processes, Ulbricht examines some of these processes and looks to what cultural coexistence beyond immunity might look like.

Critical Connections

Series Editors: Ian Buchanan, University of Wollongong, and James Williams, University of Dundee

These edited collections forge new connections between contemporary critical theorists and a wide range of research areas, such as critical and cultural theory, gender studies, film, literature, music, philosophy and politics.

Butler and Ethics

Edited by Moya Lloyd, Loughborough University

Nine essays evaluate Judith Butler's ethical theory, asking whether she has made an ethical turn

Best known for Gender Trouble (1990), Judith Butler's 2005 book Giving an Account of Oneself suggested a move away from sex, gender, sexuality and politics. This volume asks, was this an 'ethical turn' or is it a culmination of her earlier ideas? How do Butler's ethics relate to her politics and how do they connect to her increasing concern with violence, war and conflict?

Badiou and the Political Condition

Edited by Marios Constantinou, Independent Researcher

15 essays, including a new essay by Alain Badiou himself, unpack Badiou's diverse political legacies

'These essays explicate, critique and extend key ideas in the political thought of Alain Badiou. That achievement alone makes the collection important. The breadth and clarity of the contributions – which take up art, music, psychoanalysis and love as well as biopolitics, militancy, revolution and communism – make it necessary.'

Agamben and Politics

A Critical Introduction

Sergei Prozorov, University of Helsinki

A critical introduction to Giorgio Agamben's political thought that highlights its affirmative dimension

Focusing on the concept of inoperativity in the domains of language, law, history and humanity, Agamben and Politics systematically introduces you to Agamben's political thought. Sergei Prozorov critically interprets Agamben's insights in the wider context of contemporary philosophy and brings out the affirmative mood of Agamben's politics.

- The first critical introduction to focus on Agamben's political thought
- Covers all of Agamben's published work, including his first philosophical works on ontology and ethics

History and Event

From Marxism to Contemporary French Theory

Nathan Coombs, University of Edinburgh

Explores the politics of modern and contemporary historical sciences, from Marxism to contemporary French theory

Nathan Coombs demonstrates that the Marxist science of history has been reimagined by a strand of contemporary French theory after Louis Althusser. Taking a comparative approach, Coombs explores the technical details of both traditions' historical sciences. He argues that their articulations of history and event affect how we approach political transformation and view the role of theoreticians in political practice.

Space, Politics and Aesthetics

Mustafa Dikeç, Ecole d'urbanisme de Paris

Engages with Arendt, Rancière and Nancy's post-Kantian political theory

Mustafa Dikeç reveals the aesthetic premises that underlie Hannah Arendt, Jean-Luc Nancy and Jacques Rancière's political thinking, and demonstrates how their politics depend on the construction and apprehension of worlds through spatial forms and distributions. Exploring these dimensions of the political, he argues that politics is about how we perceive and relate to the world. Space is a form of appearance and a mode of actuality, and the disruption of such forms and modes is the sublime element in politics.

Ethics and Politics after Poststructuralism

Levinas, Derrida and Nancy

'A novel way to think about why we are unable to give ourselves the answers that we nevertheless continue to look for. Fagan provides a smart discussion of key thinkers' problematisation of ethics and politics, and she has the courage of her convictions.' Maja Zehfuss, University of Manchester

Drawing on the work of Emmanuel Levinas, Jacques Derrida and Jean-Luc Nancy, Ethics and Politics after Poststructuralism puts forward a radical and far-reaching critique of both foundational and non-foundational ethical theory.

And she does this cogently, without significantly sacrificing breadth or depth ... Schick's work is a compelling invitation to read more Gillian Rose.'

Kropotkin

Reviewing the Classical Anarchist Tradition

Ruth Kinna, Loughborough University

A sympathetic critical analysis that dispels the myths and highlights the importance of Kropotkin's anarchist thought

Ruth Kinna reassesses Kropotkin's political thought and suggests that the 'classical' interpretation has distorted his ideas. By setting the analysis of his work in a number of key historical contexts, she reveals the enduring significance of his political philosophy.

A key argument is that Kropotkin contributed to the elaboration of an anarchist ideology, which has been badly misunderstood and often dismissed as outdated. Kinna corrects some popular myths about Kropotkin's thought, explains his unique contribution to the history of socialist ideas and sheds new light on the nature of anarchist ideology.

The Post-Political and Its Discontents

Spaces of Depoliticisation, Spectres of Radical Politics

Edited by Japhy Wilson, National Strategic Centre for the Right to Territory (CENEDET) in Quito, and Erik Swyngedouw, University of Manchester

A theoretical and practical interrogation of how the post-political has come to dominate governance

This collection makes sense of our depoliticised situation by critically engaging with the influential theory of 'the post-political' developed by Chantal Mouffe, Jacques Rancière, Slavoj Žižek and others. Through a multi-dimensional and fiercely contested assessment of contemporary depoliticisation, The Post-Political and Its Discontents urges us to confront the closure of our political horizons and re-imagine the possibility of emancipatory change.

The Concept of the State in International Relations

Philosophy, Sovereignty and Cosmopolitanism

Edited by Robert Schuett, Austrian Federal Civil Service, and Peter M. R. Stirk, Durham University

Assesses the concepts of the state and sovereignty in international relations

The concept of state plays a central role in international relations, yet its definition is persistently taken to be self-evident by both its advocates and critics. Now, the essays in this collection give you a coherent and, at the same time, distinctively pluralist set of original reflections on the role and nature of the state.

One who reads this book is rewarded with an extraordinarily insightful, independent account of both Heidegger and Deleuze and this is what makes the comparisons so cogent and effective. Sholtz also effectively shows the indissoluble connection between aesthetics and politics in both of these authors and argues persuasively that the future of politics will follow the path Heidegger and Deleuze have opened.'

Returning to Revolution

Deleuze, Guattari and Zapatismo

Thomas Nail, University of Denver

An account of the concept of revolution in the work of Deleuze and Guattari

'From Deleuze–Guattari to the Zapatistas and the Occupy movement, there is a long line of flight and an intertwining of subjective potencies that define, both theoretically and practically, the return of revolutionary action – which is traced here by Thomas Nail. This return to action is not dispersed in the molecular plurality of social movements, nor is it confused with any ideal prefiguration of the common, but instead produces new political bodies and strategic participation. Well done Nail!'

Europe after Derrida

Crisis and Potentiality

Edited by Agnes Czajka, The Open University, and Bora Isyar, The National University of Ireland, Maynooth

Having anticipated a crisis-to-come, what can Derrida offer Europe now that the crisis is here?

'This is an outstanding collection of essays on the recent history, the contemporary predicament and the future promise of Europe. Inspired by Jacques Derrida's reflections on Europe in The Other Heading and elsewhere, these essays pose critical questions regarding the past problems and the future prospects of Europe's geographical, economic, political, cultural and, especially, religious identity. It's a collection as unified and diverse, as compelling and provocative, as "Europe itself".'

Rethinking Shakespeare's Political Philosophy

From Lear to Leviathan

Alex Schulman, Duke University

A new interpretation of Shakespeare's plays as a unified statement of early modern political theory

From Shakespeare's interpretation of ancient and medieval politics to his wrestling with issues of legitimacy, religious toleration, family conflict and economic change, Alex Schulman shows how Shakespeare produces a fascinating map of modern politics at its crisis-filled birth.

- Challenges the reigning viewpoint among political theorists that Shakespeare affirms ancient concepts of political virtue
- Extends discussion of Shakespeare's politics beyond his Elizabethan/Jacobean context
- Demonstrates the relevance of narrative and its various modes (comedy, tragedy, history) to our understanding of the human as a political animal

Constitutional Violence

Legitimacy, Democracy and Human Rights

Antoni Abat i Ninet, University of Copenhagen

If constitutional legitimacy is based on violence, what does this mean for democracy?

Western political systems tend to be 'constitutional democracies', dividing the system into a domain of politics, where the people rule, and a domain of law, set aside for a trained elite. But is a constitution the best device to rule a country? Antoni Abat i Ninet strives to resolve these apparently exclusive public and legal sovereignties, using their various avatars across the globe as case studies.

Ninet challenges the American constitutional experience that has dominated Western constitutional thought as a quasi-religious doctrine. And he argues that human rights and democracy must strive to deactivate the 'invisible' but very real violence embedded in our seemingly sacrosanct constitutions.

Ambiguous Citizenship in an Age of Global Migration

Aoileann Ní Mhurchú, University of Manchester

A sustained engagement with the increasingly complicated global, transnational and postmodern nature of citizenship

'Few studies rethink citizenship with the creativity, imagination and nuance of this book. Aoileann Ní Mhurchú investigates the politics of citizenship in relation to the struggles of intergenerational migrants and reveals the value of seemingly fragile, impermanent and transient forms of political subjectivity.' Peter Nyers, McMaster University

Many people see citizenship in a globalised world in terms of binaries: inclusion/exclusion, past/present, particularism/universalism. Aoileann Ní Mhurchú uses critical resources from poststructuralism, psychoanalysis and postcolonialism to reconfigure citizenship beyond these categories.

Philip Derbyshire, Birkbeck, University of London, Radical Philosophy

The Ethics of the Global Environment

2nd Edition

Robin Attfield, Cardiff University

Learn how ethical principles and concepts apply to global environmental problems

'We have entered a unique century, the first century in the 35 million centuries of life on Earth in which one species can jeopardise the planet's future. Robin Attfield's biospheric consequentialism is insightful and persuasive, at the frontier of the crescendo of global concern for life on our wonderland planet.'

Holmes Rolston III, Colorado State University

New for this edition

- A new chapter on the ethics of climate change
- Up-to-date case studies on issues such as Haiti's re-forestation project, food sovereignty and resistance to the Xayaburi Dam
- New passages on lobbying websites and the Yasuni Reserve in Ecuador

This fully updated and expanded textbook gives you new reflections on global environmental issues. It looks at issues including climate change, sustainable development and biodiversity preservation, and sensitively addresses global developments such as the Summits at Durban on climate and at Nagoya on biodiversity. Robin Attfield gives an ethical critique of current international environmental problems and negotiations, and explains how international regimes will need to change to be able to cope with global environmental problems.

Global Ethics and Climate Change

2nd Edition

Paul G. Harris, Hong Kong Institute of Education

Finds solutions to the world's greatest challenge – climate change – in global ethics

Praise for the first edition

'Paul Harris argues that affluent people everywhere are, by their contributions to climate change, violating the rights of the poor. He makes a powerful case for focusing on individual rights and responsibilities in the framework of a new world ethic. I hope this book will be widely read, and acted upon.'

Peter Singer, Professor of Bioethics, Princeton University

'This accessible book is highly recommended reading for all interested in international climate change, especially those seeking perspectives beyond the usual policy fare.'

Friedrich Soltau, Division for Sustainable Development, United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs, Climate Law

New for this edition

- Includes recent climate diplomacy and international agreements
- Presents current data and information on climate science
- Updated statistics, e.g. in chapters and sections that look at poverty and wealth
- Expanded learning guide for students and lecturers

Global Ethics and Climate Change combines the science of climate change with ethical critique to expose its impact, the increasing intensity of dangerous trends – particularly growing global affluence, material consumption and pollution – and the intensifying moral dimensions of changes to the environment. It shows you that global justice is vital to mitigating climate change.

The Practices of Global Ethics

Historical Developments, Current Issues and Contemporary Prospects

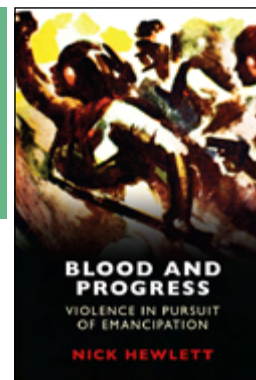

Frederick Bird, University of Waterloo, Canada, Sumner Twiss, Florida State University, Kusumita Pedersen, St Francis College, New York, Clark Miller, Arizona State University, and Bruce Grelle, California State University, Chico

Reveals how people and organisations have practised global ethics in the past 70 years

The Practices of Global Ethics examines the development of global ethics since WWII, from its philosophical and historical significance to the contemporary challenges it faces. It looks at what people are doing when they engage in global ethics – from trying to establish universal normative standards for all people and promoting ideals for how people should act, to calling attention to injustices among peoples and ways the earth is being defaced.

Discover how global rights practitioners have

- Collaborated to draft codes like the Geneva Conventions and Universal Declaration of Human Rights
- Committed to care for the earth and its inhabitants
- Cooperated to establish and work through organisations like the World Meteorological Society, the International Atomic Energy Agency, Amnesty International and the Parliament of World Religions to address serious global crises

Blood and Progress

Violence in Pursuit of Emancipation

Nick Hewlett, University of Warwick

Judges the ethics of violence in revolt by the extent to which equality and non-violence are part of the goal

From ending the feudal order to struggling against colonial rule; from revolts against slavery to the Bolshevik, Chinese and Cuban revolutions; and from ending foreign occupations to civil wars to overthrow dictators, violent means are seen to justify the non-violent ends. 'Necessary violence' was taken for granted by revolutionaries inspired by Marx, Lenin, Mao and Castro, and countless others.

Nick Hewlett places the objectives of non-violence and peace centre-stage to give you a new understanding of violence in revolt. He argues that making the goal of a wholly peaceful society explicit makes an important difference to how we approach and understand violence in pursuit of emancipation.

On Good and Evil and the Grey Zone

Alex Danchev, University of St Andrews

Mixes art, politics and ethics to explore the terrors of the modern age, from Auschwitz to Abu Ghraib

How can works of the imagination help us to understand good and evil in the modern world? In this new collection of essays, Alex Danchev treats the artist as a crucial moral witness of our troubled times, and puts art to work in the service of political and ethical inquiry. He takes inspiration from Seamus Heaney's dictum: 'the imaginative transformation of human life is the means by which we can most truly grasp and comprehend it'.

- A signature mix of art and politics, addressing a tremendous range of ethical, artistic and political questions
- Engages with fundamental, and controversial, issues of international life: terror, torture, secrecy, privacy, memory and identity

Rwanda and the Moral Obligation of Humanitarian Intervention

Joshua James Kassner, University of Baltimore

Why the international community should have intervened in Rwanda

'The horrific moral failure of the world community during the Rwanda tragedy raises some of the most troubling dilemmas about humanitarian military intervention. Joshua Kassner's book responds to these quandaries with admirable clarity and impressive depth. This is a powerful book on the vexing questions of human wrongs and global responsibilities in our fast emerging globalised world.'

Fear and the Making of Foreign Policy

Europe and Beyond

Raymond Taras, Tulane University

Can a society's fear of foreigners lead to xenophobic foreign policy?

This is a book about conflicts and fears: how domestic reasons are drawing countries in Europe into international events.

There has been a lot of research into why the US and UK militaries intervened in Iraq, Afghanistan and other conflict zones. But what explains France's newfound international activism, which is taking its military to Libya, Mali and deeper into Africa? Why has Poland become deeply engaged in Ukraine's politics? Why is Sweden, which has not fought a war since 1814, concerned with the fierce internal wars in Iraq and Syria? Are these countries simply protecting their national interests, or is domestic xenophobia also playing a part?

In Fear and the Making of Foreign Policy, Raymond Taras explains the causal mechanisms propelling these three EU states to become engaged in outside conflicts and tells the story of when and why xenophobia at home is converted into xenophobia abroad.

- Chapter length case studies of France, Poland and Sweden, together with counterpoints from the USA, China, Iran and Turkey, investigate the role that human phobias play in international politics
- Examines countries whose policy responses to 'strangers' at home and 'friends' or 'foes' abroad are dramatically dissimilar
- Addresses the phenomena of social fears, moral panic and declinism of the West through the prism of xenophobic attitudes and their often-underestimated consequences

The European Charter of Local Self-Government

A Treaty for Local Democracy

Chris Himsworth, University of Edinburgh

The first critical study of the 1985 treaty that guarantees the status of local self-government

Chris Himsworth analyses the text of the 1985 European Charter of Local Self-Government, traces its historical emergence and explains how it has been applied and interpreted throughout Europe, including the 2014 'Local and regional democracy in the United Kingdom' report published by the Council of Europe in March 2014. Locating the Charter's own history within the broader recent history of the Council of Europe and the European Union, the book closes with an assessment of the Charter's future prospects.

The Crisis of Social Democracy in Europe

Edited by Michael Keating, University of Aberdeen and University of Edinburgh, and David McCrone, University of Edinburgh

Is social democracy in a terminal condition in Europe?

Social democracy is in office almost nowhere in Europe and seems to be out of ideas in the face of the economic crisis that might have given it a historic opportunity. While accepting the truth of this, this volume takes a stand against those who claim that social democracy is dead, contesting that its key principles are still relevant but must be adapted to new conditions.

Looking at both Western and East-Central Europe and the policy challenges in economic policy, labour markets, social welfare, public services, integration and decentralisation, the contributors show that social democracy as a way of reconciling market capitalism with social inclusion and equality has actually been remarkably successful during the 20th century.

The European Court of Human Rights

Implementing Strasbourg's Judgments on Domestic Policy

Edited by Dia Anagnostou, Panteion University of Social Sciences

Considers the domestic implementation of the Court's judgments and their impact upon national laws, policies and institutions

This interdisciplinary book relates how marginalised individuals, civil society and minority actors strategically take recourse in the Strasbourg Court to challenge state laws, policies and practices. It then goes on to explore how these judgements are implemented in member states, dissecting the variable patterns within and between countries.

Muslims in Ireland

Past and Present

Oliver Scharbrodt, University of Chester, Tuula Sakaranaho, University of Helsinki, Adil Hussain Khan, Loyola University, New Orleans, Yafa Shanneik, University College Cork, and Vivian Ibrahim, University of Mississippi

The first complete study of a little-known Muslim presence in Europe

This study of Muslims in Ireland moves from the arrival of the first Muslim resident in Cork in 1784 to the mass immigration to the Republic of Ireland during the 'Celtic Tiger' period from the mid 1990s onwards. Muslim immigration and settlement in Ireland is very recent and poses new challenges to a society that has perceived itself as religiously and culturally homogeneous. This book is essential for anyone who wants to understand the diversity of Muslim presences across Europe.

Contemporary Issues in Islam

Asma Afsaruddin, Indiana University

Discusses key issues in Islam today including Shari'ah, jihād, politics, gender and interfaith relations

Most public – and occasionally academic – discourses in the West present the Islamic tradition as unchanging and unable to respond to the modern world. This approach can foster the belief that Muslim-majority and Western societies are destined to clash. Contemporary Issues in Islam reveals instead the diversity and transformations within Islamic thought by discussing key topics within a historical framework.

- Discusses seven key issues and concepts including Shari'ah, jihād, the caliphate, women's status and interfaith relations, exploring the different ways they have been interpreted and applied over time
- Challenges the 'clash of civilisations' thesis by identifying shared, universal values between Islam and the West

The Egyptian Dream

Egyptian National Identity and Uprisings

Noha Mellor, University of Bedfordshire

Explores the struggle to define Egyptian national identity post-independence

The story of Egyptian identity from the beginning of the 20th century is one constructed by statesmen, intellectuals and Islamic thinkers. This book argues that the current fragmentation of Egypt's political scene reflects the increasing social division in a country where 'the people' are demanding a redefinition of their national identity.

Scrutinising the society behind the uprisings that began in 2011 and their diverse economic, ideological and sectorial demands, Mellor also looks at the desperate state's attempt to construct a unified Egyptian identity – an attempt which resulted in further splitting Egyptian society.

The Legacy of Iraq

From the 2003 War to the 'Islamic State'

Edited by Benjamin Isakhan, Deakin University

Examines the complex and difficult legacies of the 2003 Iraq War

The 2003 intervention was supposed to transform Iraq into a peaceful and prosperous liberal democracy, underpinned by free market capitalism. It failed. The mistakes made by the coalition and the Iraqi political elite have had devastating consequences for Iraq, the Middle East and for the rest of the world. This is the first book to dissect the consequences of the war and give you new insights into why the country has descended into its current chaos, as ISIS advances and the US leads another coalition into military action.

Reforging a Forgotten History

Iraq and the Assyrians in the Twentieth Century

Sargon George Donabed, Roger Williams University, Rhode Island

Situates an Assyrian narrative within the history of modern Iraq

This book details the narrative and history of Iraq in the 20th century and reinserts the Assyrian experience as an integral part of Iraq's broader contemporary historiography. Using primary and secondary data, Reforging a Forgotten History offers a nuanced exploration of the dynamics that have affected and determined the trajectory of the Assyrians' experience in 20th-century Iraq.

- The first account to contextualise this native people's experience alongside the developmental processes of the modern Iraqi state

The Transition Towards Revolution and Reform

The Arab Spring Realised?

Sonia L. Alianak, University of Texas – Rio Grande Valley

Asks why some Arab Spring uprisings led to reforms and others to revolutions

The Arab Spring created a transition toward democracy for the peoples of Tunisia, Egypt, Morocco and Jordan, who initially elected moderate Islamist parties to lead them out of economic deprivation and corruption. Sonia L. Alianak looks at the relative success of the move to democracy in these four Middle Eastern countries. She compares the secular leaders of Tunisia and Egypt, with their desire for revolution, with the monarchs of Morocco and Jordan and their priority of reform.

The Biopolitics of Stalinism

Ideology and Life in Soviet Socialism

Sergei Prozorov, University of Helsinki

The first book to investigate Soviet socialism from a biopolitical perspective

Canonical theories of Michel Foucault, Giorgio Agamben and Roberto Esposito focus on liberal and fascist rationalities of biopolitics. In opposition to this, Stalinism exemplifies its alternative mode, oriented more towards transforming life, not protecting it, in accordance with a transcendent ideal of communism.

Sergei Prozorov reconstructs this rationality in the early Stalinist project of the Great Break (1928–32) and its subsequent modifications during the High Stalinist period. He relocates the question of biopolitics down to the level of the subject, tracing the way the 'new Soviet person' was to be constructed in governmental practices and the role that violence and terror played in this construction.

The New Russian Nationalism

Imperialism, Ethnicity and Authoritarianism 2000–15

Edited by Pål Kolstø, University of Oslo, and Helge Blakkisrud, Norwegian Institute of International Affairs

Traces Russia's transforming nationalist discourse, from imperialism, through ethnocentrism and migration phobia, to territorial expansion

The importance of Russian nationalism has risen dramatically and in unexpected ways. Ethnic riots in Moscow in October 2013 showed the mobilising potential of migrantophobia; one month earlier, liberal nationalist Aleksey Navalny garnered 27 per cent of the vote in the Moscow mayoral elections. Then, in 2014, nationalism was pushed to the top of the agenda again by the annexation of Crimea and the war in Eastern Ukraine.

- Traces the developments of Russian nationalism both before and after the annexation of Crimea in March 2014, and analyses what it means for the West
- Examines the motivations and drive behind migrantophobia

Reagan and Thatcher's Special Relationship

Latin America and Anglo-American Relations

Sally-Ann Treharne, University College Cork, NUI

A unique insight into one of the most controversial political relationships in recent history

The Falklands War, the US invasion of Grenada, the Anglo-Guatemalan dispute over Belize and the US involvement in Nicaragua – in the 1980s, these crises threatened to overwhelm a renewal in US-UK relations.

Sally-Ann Treharne vividly portrays the role of personal diplomacy between US President Ronald Reagan and UK Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in overcoming these obstacles to Anglo-American relations in the final years of the Cold War. Drawing on recently declassified documents and candid interviews with key protagonists, she highlights the pivotal moments in Reagan and Thatcher's shared history from a new vantage point.

Franklin Roosevelt and the Anglo-American 'Special Relationship' before Churchill, 1933-1940

Tony McCulloch, Canterbury Christ Church University

Locates the immediate origins of the Anglo-American 'special relationship' in the diplomacy of Roosevelt's administration

The 'Special Relationship' between the UK and the US is generally regarded as having been forged during the Second World War. Tony McCulloch challenges this view, arguing that the groundwork for the Special Relationship was laid by the Roosevelt Administration's response to the growing threat Nazi Germany posed to US security between 1933 and 1940. This slowly developing 'tacit alliance' paved the way for the Special Relationship of the Second World War and beyond.

William Storey, Principal Examiner for A2 US Government and Politics, Edexcel (retired)

Explores whether the US political system lives up to its promise of freedom and equality of opportunity for all

Americans have sharply contrasting views on how well their political system works. They disagreed with each other when they established the system at the Constitutional Convention in 1787 and have continued to disagree ever since. This book covers the key issues, political systems and governing institutions at the heart of these disagreements, outlining the thinking behind the main points of view, to help its readers decide for themselves which viewpoint they find most persuasive.

- Explains how the US political system operates and outlines the main issues, problems and controversies
- Discusses the proposed solutions to these issues, considering the mainstream political and ideological viewpoints

Rhodri Jeffreys-Jones, University of Edinburgh

How left-wing politics has shaped life in the USA, from the 1900s to the present day

Winner of the American Politics Group's 2013 Richard Neustadt Book Prize

'The American Left provides a sweeping overview of the American left-wing and socialist tradition since the late-19th century. It compellingly argues that progressives should cease to dismiss its importance. Instead they should acknowledge its ties with and enormous influence on American progressives. It shows that the American left has made a large contribution to the American Welfare State, changes in social policy and has often been a model for left-of-centre movements abroad. The committee was unanimous in awarding the prize.'

African, American and European Trajectories of Modernity

Past Oppression, Future Justice?

Edited by Peter Wagner, University of Barcelona

Firmly links the history of Europe to world history, situating European modernity in its global context

This volume explores the relationship that 'Europe' and 'the rest of the world' entered into – one not just of domination, but conceived of as an advance in historical time.

It first analyses the emergence of this Atlantic modernity, then proceeds to compare aspects of contemporary Southern modernity, focusing on Brazil, Chile and South Africa. Finally, it explores the dynamics of contemporary modernity worldwide, looking at the relationship between past oppression and injustice and expectations for future freedom and justice.

Religion and Politics

European and Global Perspectives

Edited by Johann P. Arnason, La Trobe University, Melbourne, and Ireneusz Pawel Karolewski, University of Wrocław

Shows religion and politics to be a key connecting link between European and global affairs

Combining theoretical and empirical research, these 12 essays examine the role of religion and its prospects in Europe. On one hand, the volume discusses the growing Islamic presence in Europe as a reminder of enduring religious pluralism. On the other, it explores Christian-motivated extremism and religious nationalism. Against this background, the contributors discuss the role of religion in other countries throughout the world, including China, Japan, Russia and the MENA region.

The Cuban Missile Crisis

Origins, Course and Aftermath

Jonathan Colman, University of Central Lancashire

Draws on new sources to examine one of the most dramatic and dangerous episodes in world history

October 1962, The Cuban Missile Crisis: the confrontation that brought the world closer to nuclear catastrophe than ever before or since. Drawing on an extensive body of research, including primary sources released only in the last few years, Jonathan Colman places the crisis in a broader international and chronological context than previously possible.

- Draws on the latest books, articles and documents, including Soviet and Cuban materials, documents only released after the 50th anniversary of the crisis and primary sources that have rarely, if ever, been reproduced before

A History of Military Occupation from 1792 to 1914

Peter M. R. Stirk, Durham University

The first comparative history of military occupation as a political phenomenon

An understanding of military occupation as a distinct phenomenon first emerged in the eighteenth century. This book shows how this understanding developed and the problems that the occupiers, the occupied, commentators and the courts encountered.

Covers all major occupations including:

France, Sicily, Greece, Belgium, Syria, Mexico, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Cyprus, Egypt, Korea, Peking, the Boer Republics, Latin America and occupations related to the Napoleonic Wars, the Mexican-American War, the American Civil War, the Franco Prussian War, the Russo-Turkish War and the Spanish-American War

Post-Liberal Peace Transitions

Between Peace Formation and State Formation

Oliver P. Richmond and Sandra Pogodda, both University of Manchester

Explores the interplay of forces that shape 'peace formation' in modern conflict-affected states

Why is it that states emerging from intervention, peacebuilding and statebuilding over the last 25 years appear to be 'failed by design'? This study explores how local peace formation dynamics must develop their role, influence and capacity against a backdrop of internal violence, external intervention, international actors and the (neo)liberal peacebuilding project.

- Comparative case studies, based on wide-ranging fieldwork, look at Afghanistan, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Cambodia, Cyprus, East Timor (Timor Leste), Israel and Palestine, Kosovo, Northern Ireland, Sierra Leone and the Solomon Islands
- Takes an innovative theoretical approach, engaging with local and contextual forms of peacebuilding agency and including local authors

Obligation in Exile

The Jewish Diaspora, Israel and Critique

Ilan Zvi Baron, Durham University

Explores the complex relationship between Israel and the Diaspora Jewish identity

Combining political theory and sociological interviews spanning four countries, the USA, Canada, Israel and the UK, Ilan Zvi Baron explores the Jewish Diaspora-Israel relationship and suggests that instead of looking at Diaspora Jews' relationship with Israel as a matter of loyalty, it is one of obligation.

Baron outlines a theory of transnational political obligation and, in the process, provides an alternative way to understand and explore the Diaspora-Israel relationship than one mired in partisan debates about whether or not being a good Jew means supporting Israel.

The Political Aesthetics of Global Protest

The Arab Spring and Beyond

Edited by Pnina Werbner, Keele University, Martin Webb, Goldsmiths, University of London, and Kathryn Spellman-Poots, Aga Khan University Institute for the Study of Muslim Civilisations

Explores the aesthetic dimensions of the Arab Spring and the protest movements that followed

A remarkable feature of the protests from the Arab Spring onwards is the powerful use of images, songs, videos, humour, satire and dramatic performances. This book explores the central role the aesthetic played in energising the mass mobilisations of people and alliances between groups.

Comparing the North African and Middle Eastern uprisings with protest movements such as Occupy, and revolts against regimes with protests against austerity, the authors bring to bear an anthropological and sociological approach from a variety of perspectives, illuminating the debate by drawing on a wide array of disciplinary expertise.

The Politics of International Law and International Justice

Edwin Egede and Peter Sutch, both Cardiff University

An introduction to international law for politics and IR students

'Egede and Sutch have written a rewarding and highly engaging book that traverses the contentious interdisciplinary debates regarding the legalisation of world politics.'

Patrick Hayden, University of St Andrews, Journal of International Political Theory

Written by a lawyer and a political theorist, this textbook is for students studying law in other departments, such as politics and international relations. Key concepts are carefully explained in text boxes and each chapter includes case studies, chapter summaries, revision questions and suggestions for further reading.

The Arab World and Western Intelligence

Analysing the Middle East, 1956-1981

Dina Rezk, University of Warwick

The untold story of Western intelligence in the Middle East

Dina Rezk addresses a critical question embedded within the heated debate about the 'failure' of American intelligence post-9/11: have Western experts fundamentally failed to understand the dynamics, leaders and culture of the Middle East? Rezk analyses eight case studies, culminating in the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar el Sadat on live television on 6 October 1981. Drawing on declassified documents, interviews and multi-archival research, she explores how the most powerful intelligence agencies in the world have been so notoriously caught off guard in post-WWII Middle East.

Critique of Security

Mark Neocleous, Brunel University

Brings together very diverse discussions about security to genuinely critique security and its study

'Challenging and accessible, this book opens up new political questions as it describes the new ways in which life has become more comprehensively securitised.'

Michael Dillon, Lancaster University

- The first fully fledged critique of security
- Provides a distinctive account of theoretical debates about security within the tradition of social and political theory
- Gives a genuinely interdisciplinary account of security, moving between political thought, history, sociology and law

Scottish Affairs

Editor: Lindsay Paterson, University of Edinburgh

The leading forum for debate on Scottish current affairs

Founded in 1992, Scottish Affairs publishes articles on the development of Scotland, often setting current affairs in an international or historical context and in a context of debates about culture and identity. This includes articles about similarly placed small nations and regions throughout Europe and beyond.

Scottish Affairs takes up a position between informed journalism and academic analysis, serving as a forum for dialogue between the two. The readers and contributors include journalists, politicians, civil servants, business people and academics.

Derrida Today

Editors: Nicole Anderson and Nick Mansfield, both Macquarie University

Focuses on what Derrida's thought can offer to contemporary debates about politics, society and global affairs

Controversies about power, violence, identity, globalisation, the resurgence of religion, economics and the role of critique all agitate public policy, media dialogue and academic debate. Derrida Today explores how Derridean thought and deconstruction make significant contributions to this debate, and reconsider the terms on which it takes place.
